HUSKIES: The Inuit's Best Friend

For many people, dogs are pets. For the Inuit people, dogs are much more than pets. They are an important part of life. Husky dogs help the Inuit in many ways. The Inuit are the native people of the Arctic. They live in Alaska, Canada, Greenland, and Siberia - places with very cold climates. The Inuit use huskies because the dogs can live in very cold climates, too. The Inuit also use huskies because they are strong and work hard.

Today, many Inuit people live a traditional lifestyle. They use animals for food, transportation, and clothes. In the Arctic, there isn't much fresh fruit, and there aren't many vegetables. In some places, there aren't any supermarkets. So, the Inuit usually eat meat and fish. They hunt seals, polar bears, and reindeer - and their dogs help them do it. When the Inuit look for animals, they travel with their dogs. They make sleds with animal bones and skin, and teams of huskies pull the sleds. The dogs can pull heavy sleds and go very fast.

Huskies are often part of Inuit families. The Inuit love their dogs and can't live without them!
