

In many countries, young people are encouraged to take part in unpaid community services in their free time to help the local community such as working for charity, improving the neighbourhood or teaching sports to younger children. It's widely believed that this would benefit both individual teenagers and society as well.

Do you agree or disagree with the above opinion?

In many countries, young people are encouraged to 1. _____ in unpaid community services during their free time. Activities such as working for charity, improving neighborhoods, or teaching sports to younger children 2. _____ common examples. It is said that these activities not only benefit society but 3. _____ help teenagers grow personally. I strongly agree with this opinion.

To 4. _____ with, participating in community service helps teenagers develop essential life skills. For 5. _____, when they work in charity organizations, they learn teamwork, communication, and problem-solving. These skills are valuable for their future careers and personal lives. 6. _____ addition, they gain a sense of responsibility and learn the importance of helping others. These experiences help them mature and become more independent.

7. _____, volunteering can help teenagers build strong relationships with members of their community. 8. _____ working with others to improve their neighborhoods or teach younger children, they create bonds with people from different age groups and backgrounds. These connections foster a sense of belonging and help create a more united society. Moreover, community service teaches them empathy, as they become more aware 9. _____ the struggles and needs of others. As a 10. _____, they become more sympathetic and more satisfied with what they have.

Finally, society also 11. _____ from the energy and creativity that young people bring to community projects. Their fresh ideas and enthusiasm can lead 12. _____ meaningful improvements in local areas. To be more 13. _____, people in need such as poor or homeless people can be assisted in time. Besides, encouraging teenagers to contribute to their communities promotes a culture of volunteerism, where people of all ages are 14. _____ to help one another. This will create strong and healthy communities where people can eliminate the difficulties.

In 15. _____, unpaid community service is beneficial to both teenagers and society. Therefore, I believe that encouraging teenagers to volunteer is a positive step toward their personal development and the well-being of society.

317 words