seducing get away with fraudulent hoaxes hold down pull the wool over the eyes

Who can help (even secretly) cheering for Frank Abagnale? Not only did he 1) _____ what are now considered to be horribly obvious 2) _____, he ended up a pretty wealthy dude because of getting discovered. That's just some serious talent.

Abagnale is now most known for being portrayed by Leonardo DiCaprio in the film Catch Me If You Can, about a teenage boy who figures out how to 3) _____ of everyone he comes into contact with, and spends the next six years doing just that. Abagnale's most famous lies include: posing as a pilot at age 16, being handed a legitimate position as a medical supervisor at an ER at age 18, passing as a Harvard Law School graduate to obtain a job as an attorney in Louisiana, and 4) _____ who knows how many older women into affairs.

Here's the really good part: Abagnale ended up spending less than five years in prison before being hired by the FBI to consult on 5) _____ cases in return for his release. Following this gig, Abagnale found it difficult to 6) _____ a job, given his reluctance to disclose his criminal past to a long line of employers, and his entrepreneurial instincts once again came in handy. He founded the successful firm Abagnale & Associates, has had an Academy Award-nominated film and a Broadway play made about his life, and is a successful businessman with admirers around the world.
