

Rhythmic gymnast Linoy Ashram wins silver, bronze medals at World Championships

By TOI STAFF Today, 9:19 pm

Israeli rhythmic gymnast Linoy Ashram took home two gold and two silver medals at the World Championships on Tuesday. Ashram won silver in the hoop competition and bronze in the ball competition, snagging the medals on the second day of the games being held in Azerbaijan's capital Baku.

"I am proud to represent Israel here and of course, going to [the] Tokyo 2020 Olympics would be a dream. It's a dream of every athlete," Linoy told the Olympic Channel after the competition.

Ashram has racked up an impressive series of victories in recent competitions, making her, a 20-year-old Rishon LeZion native, a favorite to medal at the Olympic Games next summer.

THE TIMES OF ISRAEL

Last August, Ashram won two golds and a bronze medal at the Rhythmic Gymnastics World Challenge Cup, setting a world record in the clubs event. A month later, she finished second in the world championships, the best ever performance by an Israeli gymnast.

So far in 2019, Ashram has won seven medals at international competitions; three gold medals at the Grand Prix in March, and in June, she snagged two gold and two silver medals at the European Games.

Questions

1. Where were the World Championships being held this year?
2. What did Linoy win in the championships?
3. In which competitions did Linoy participate?
4. What is Linoy's dream?
5. How many medals in total did Linoy win in 2019 and what are they?

Answers:

THE TIMES OF ISRAEL
