

READING FINAL REVIEW

Exploring the World Responsibly

In recent years, tourism has become one of the largest industries in the world. People travel for many reasons: to relax, explore new cultures, or seek adventure. However, mass tourism has caused significant problems for the environment and local communities. That's why responsible tourism has become more important than ever.

Responsible tourism means being aware of the impact our travels have on the places we visit. It's about respecting local customs, supporting local businesses, and protecting the environment. For example, instead of staying in big hotels, travelers can choose to stay in local guesthouses, which helps the local economy. They can also try local foods and buy handmade souvenirs from local artisans.

Another key aspect of responsible tourism is minimizing environmental damage. This means reducing plastic waste, using less water, and being mindful of wildlife. Many tourist destinations suffer because visitors don't follow the rules. In some places, animals are treated badly to entertain tourists, or forests are destroyed to build new resorts.

Responsible tourists also consider how they travel. Flying is convenient, but it produces a large amount of carbon dioxide, which contributes to climate change. To reduce their carbon footprint, responsible travelers might choose to use trains, buses, or even bicycles when possible.

In short, responsible tourism is about making choices that benefit both the traveler and the places they visit. By doing this, we can protect the beauty and culture of destinations for future generations.

1. What is the main idea of responsible tourism?

- a) Traveling as much as possible
- b) Helping the environment and local communities
- c) Avoiding interaction with local cultures
- d) Staying in big hotels

2. Why is responsible tourism becoming more important?

- a) Because it is cheaper
- b) Because tourism is harmful to the environment and communities

"And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men"

Colossians 3: 23

- c) Because tourists want more adventure
- d) Because flights are too expensive

3. Which of the following is an example of responsible tourism?

- a) Buying souvenirs made in another country
- b) Staying in local guesthouses
- c) Only visiting popular tourist spots
- d) Traveling without learning about local customs

4. What is one way tourists can help the local economy?

- a) Avoiding local businesses
- b) Eating only in large chain restaurants
- c) Staying in local accommodations
- d) Buying imported goods

5. How can travelers minimize environmental damage?

- a) Using plastic water bottles
- b) Taking shorter trips
- c) Reducing plastic waste and conserving water
- d) Visiting as many tourist spots as possible

6. Why should tourists be careful about how they travel?

- a) Some methods of travel produce more carbon dioxide
- b) Traveling by bicycle is always better
- c) Planes are always fully booked
- d) Traveling is too expensive

7. What can happen if tourists don't follow local rules?

- a) They might have a better experience
- b) Animals and the environment can suffer
- c) Tourism becomes cheaper
- d) There will be more entertainment

"And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men"

Colossians 3: 23

8. Which of the following actions does not represent responsible tourism?

- a) Using reusable bags and bottles
- b) Supporting wildlife tourism that harms animals
- c) Taking public transportation
- d) Respecting local customs

9. What is the carbon footprint?

- a) The amount of money tourists spend
- b) The amount of carbon dioxide produced by travel
- c) The number of tourists in a destination
- d) The environmental damage caused by building hotels

10. How can responsible tourism benefit future generations?

- a) By reducing the number of tourists
- b) By preserving the beauty and culture of destinations
- c) By increasing the cost of travel
- d) By building more resorts and hotels

"And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men"

Colossians 3: 23