1. A bar graph is useful for comparing different categories of data in a presentation.

2. A line graph is the best choice for showing changes over time in a presentation.

3. A pie chart is ideal for showing the distribution of ages in a population.

4. A scatter plot is used to display individual data points and show relationships between two variables.

5. Histograms are used to compare sales between different products.