

The Strictest School in the World

Gulangyu No. 2 Primary School is often called the strictest school in the world. Located on Gulangyu Island, China, this school is known for its strict rules and high standards. Their main goal is to teach students discipline, responsibility, and respect for others.

One of the most striking rules here is the way students must behave in the classroom. They are expected to sit perfectly still during lessons. If a student moves or speaks without permission, they are immediately given a warning. After three warnings, the student must stand at the back of the classroom for the rest of the lesson as a form of (1)_____. This system encourages students to pay attention and avoid any disruptions.

Another rule is about uniform. Students must wear the school uniform at all times, both in and out of school. The uniform consists of a white shirt, navy blue pants or a skirt, and a red scarf, which is a symbol of honor that students wear with pride. If a student forgets to wear any part of the uniform, they will not be allowed into the (2)_____ until their uniform is complete.

There are also strict rules about homework. Students are required to complete their homework neatly and on time. The teachers inspect the homework daily, and if a student fails to meet the school's high (3)_____, they are required to stay after school to redo their work. The school believes that this teaches students the importance of hard work and attention to (4)_____.

In this school, physical fitness is considered just as important as (5)____ achievement. Every morning, students participate in a 30-minute exercise routine which includes running, jumping, and stretching to help students stay healthy and focused.

The school also teaches students to respect their environment. Littering is strictly forbidden, and students are taught to recycle and take care of the school grounds. Every afternoon, a group of students is assigned to clean the classroom and pick up any trash. This helps instill a sense of responsibility and (6)_____ for their surroundings.

Perhaps the strictest rule at this school is the ban on technology. Students are not allowed to bring mobile phones, tablets, or any (7)_____ devices to school. The school believes that this helps students concentrate on their studies and develop their social skills. Instead of spending time on their phones, students are encouraged to read, play sports, or talk to their classmates during breaks. Any student caught with a device will have it (8)_____ and returned only at the end of the term.

Despite the strict rules, many parents choose to send their children to this school because of its excellent results. The school consistently ranks among the top in the country, and its graduates are known for their discipline and (9)_____. Teachers at the school are highly qualified and dedicated to helping each student succeed.

Overall, Gulangyu No. 2 Primary School is not for everyone. Its strict environment and high expectations can be difficult for some students. However, those who do attend the school leave with a strong sense of responsibility and (10)_____ that helps them in all aspects of life.
