Task 2: Read and answer the questions*Phở – A Popular Vietnamese Dish

Phở is a famous Vietnamese dish enjoyed by people around the world. It is a type of noodle soup made with rice noodles, a flavorful broth, and either beef (phở bò) or chicken (phở gà). Phở is often served with fresh herbs, like basil and cilantro, along with lime and chili.

The dish started in northern Vietnam in the early 1900s, but now you can find it everywhere in Vietnam. In the north, phở has a light and clear broth. In the south, the broth is richer and a little sweeter, with more herbs.

The most important part of phở is the broth. To make it, people cook beef or chicken bones with spices, like cinnamon and star anise, for hours. Today, phở is popular in many countries. You can find it in Vietnamese restaurants in big cities all over the world. It is not just food; it's also a symbol of Vietnamese culture.
