

The Strength in his Weakness

Akilan was an active boy. He loved to study and play games. He played sports in the evenings. He studied in the mornings.

He followed his father's words "Learn well, Live well". His physical education teacher inspired him to learn Judo. His parents supported him to learn Judo.

After some days, Akilan met with an accident. He lost his left hand.

He stayed at home. His parents supported his passion for Judo. So, his father got him admitted in a Judo school. The teacher taught him one specific stroke for two years. Akilan was selected for the National Judo Competition. He defeated all his opponents with his special stroke. He moved to the finals.

In the finals, his opponent was strong. He defeated Akilan in the first two rounds. Akilan's master encouraged him, believe. So, Akilan knocked out his opponents with four powerful strokes. He became the champion. Akilan thanked his master and asked, "How did I win the competition with a single stroke?". His master told him, "My dear, you learnt the most difficult stroke in Judo.

If your opponent wants to beat you, they should hold your left hand. This is the secret behind your victory."
