Arranged marriages in India

Arranged marriages are a cultural practice that has been prevalent in some societies around the world and they involve the selection of a spouse by parents, family members, or matchmakers.

In India, for example, sometimes parents of a young man and a young woman decide to introduce them with the intention of potentially getting them married. The families may initiate the process by exchanging basic information about their children, such as educational background, family background, and personal interests. During this meeting, they may have the opportunity to get to know each other and assess their compatibility. If both individuals and their families are satisfied with the match, they may proceed with the engagement and eventually plan the wedding ceremony. Love marriages and individual choice in selecting a life partner are more culturally accepted norms in other countries.
