It is natural for young people to be critical of their parents at times and to blame them for most of the misunderstandings between them. They have always complained, more or less justly, that their parents are old-fashioned, possessive, and dominant; (18)_____ ; that they talk too much about certain problems and that they have no sense of humor, at least in parent-child relationships. I think it is true that parents often underestimate (19)_____ and also forget how they themselves felt (20)_____ .

Young people often irritate their parents with their choices in clothes and hairstyles, entertainers and music. This is not their motive. They feel cut off from the adult world into which they have not yet been accepted. So they create a culture and society of their own. Then, if it turns out that their music or entertainers or vocabulary or clothes or (21)_____ , this gives them additional enjoyment. They feel they are superior, at least in a small way, and that they are leaders in style and taste.

If you plan (22)_____ , cooperation can be part of that plan. You can charm others, especially parents, into doing things the ways you want, and (23)_____ with your sense of responsibility and initiative so that they will give you the authority to do what you want to do.

Vietnam maintains strong relationships with other Southeast Asian countries, fostering cooperation and mutual benefits across various areas. Bilateral relations between Vietnam and its Southeast Asian counterparts are characterized by shared historical, cultural, and geographical ties. The country shares borders with Cambodia and Laos, and maritime boundaries with Malaysia, Indonesia, and the Philippines. These geographical proximities have facilitated extensive people-to-people exchanges, trade, and cultural interactions throughout history. Vietnam's relationships with neighboring countries are built on principles of mutual respect, non-interference, and peaceful coexistence. The country places importance on maintaining peaceful and stable relationships to contribute to regional security and development. It actively seeks to resolve any disputes through diplomatic channels and regional frameworks.

Economically, Vietnam has forged robust trade and investment ties with its Southeast Asian partners. Bilateral and multilateral trade agreements, such as the ASEAN Free Trade Area (AFTA) and the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership (RCEP), have facilitated greater market access and increased economic cooperation among member states. Vietnam also collaborates with other Southeast Asian countries in addressing common challenges and pursuing shared goals. Environmental conservation, disaster management, transnational crime prevention, and regional security cooperation are among the areas of collaboration. Through mechanisms such as ASEAN-led initiatives, joint military exercises, and cultural exchange programs, Vietnam actively contributes to building trust, fostering understanding, and strengthening cooperation among Southeast Asian nations.
