Grandma goes to the library

Grandma loved reading books. Every Tuesday, she went to the library. She walked up the steps to the door and smiled.

'I love coming to the library,' Grandma said.

'It's my favourite place.'

She went in to the entrance and said hello to Mrs Sands. She walked along the corridor to her favourite section of the library ... the food section – there were books about food and lots of recipe books. Grandma loved cooking. As she was walking, a book fell on the ground in front of her.

Example

Grandma went to the library every Tuesday.

Questions

- 1 Grandma loved _____ the library.
- 2 Grandma loved _____ recipe books.
- 3 A book fell on the ground when she _____ to the food section.

The book was very old. The cover was orange and there was a picture of a man. The man was not smiling. He wore a crown and a long dress.

'Oooh, what's this?' said Grandma.

She sat down and started to read. The book was about a king's life. He travelled all over the world and everyone loved him.

'What a good story! I can't stop reading!' Grandma said.

Grandma read and read and read.

When she looked up, there wasn't anyone in the library, not even Mrs Sands.

'Oh well,' she said. 'I have to wait until tomorrow.'

I'm going to finish this book!'

- 4 The book was _____.
- 5 Grandma started _____. It was a good story.
- 6 No one was _____ when Grandma finally stopped reading.
