Broga Hill

Semenyih, in the Malaysian Peninsula's Selangor state (0) are home to Broga Hill. It goes under the names Bukit Lalang and Bukit Broga. With a 400-metre height, this easy walk (9) provided a broad perspective of the Broga town. Because of this, it can get extremely (10) pack in the morning and evening on weekends.

Public transit is unavailable to the base of Broga Hill. The most practical and straightforward method is by car. Even with the volume of people that Broga Hill draws, there is enough parking at the base of the mountain in a spacious parking lot. The plantation that acts as Broga Hill's parking lot is (11) when the entrance is located. An attendant may be present on weekends to collect the RM2.00 parking fee.

Broga Hill's parking lot is situated inside a plantation. A signboard (12) directs people to the beginning of the Broga Hill route is located at the far end of the parking lot. Traverse the signage and ascend gradually for about 350 metres to (13) reaching the Broga Hill trailhead. The large sign that reads "Welcome to Broga Hill" indicates where the trip begins. On weekends, a drink stand with coconut juice and munchies is located right in front of (14) a signboard. You can select one of the two (15) trailed to climb from here. To the left of the large signboard, at the small fence opening, is where the old trail begins. The new route begins directly beneath the large signboard.

The plantation's entrance is situated to the right of lavatory facilities. They are often secured once the merchants have left for the day, though they might be charged. As the trekking does not (16) requires any permit, this place is always the first choice for the trekkers in Malaysia.
