Bright futures

by Yasemin

Three successful college students with big plans.

Richard is a student from Manchester. When his grandfather didn't know how to use his new smartphone, Richard started a company called TechHelp Online. Now, in his free time, he helps people to learn and use technology. He has got many online videos, even in other languages like Spanish and Chinese. He hopes one day he'll get a million views for one of his videos. He thinks he'll probably become an IT teacher one day. He loves helping others learn. His grandfather calls him Mr Helpful.

Anh Long loves fashion. He goes to college in Dallas. He wanted to help people recycle clothes that they don't wear any more. He started by asking people to give him their old clothes. He started Recycle Me so he could make new clothes from these old ones and then gave them to his friends for free. Now he collects clothes from five schools in Texas, and he has several people who help him to create recycled fashion. He says he's going to study in Italy to become a fashion designer.

Linda is from Peru. When she was eight, she went to South Africa with her parents. They went to Kruger Park and she saw wonderful wild animals like elephants. She started a blog called Planet Love about nature. It's very popular today and thousands of readers from Vietnam to Argentina post comments. Linda says she'll probably study to be a journalist so she can write about animals in Africa and around the world.
