Five Good Reasons to Visit New Zealand

1. The volcanoes.-The islands of New Zealand appeared 23 million years ago as a result of a series of volcanic eruptions. The eruptions created dramatic mountains and more than 3,800 lakes! The largest lake, Lake Taupo, lies in the crater of one of the biggest volcanoes on Earth. There are at least 12 active volcanoes, and tourists can go on special volcano tours – an unforgettable experience. With five months of snow in winter, skiing and other winter sports are very popular. You can even ski on a volcano if you want!

2. The forests.-More than 30 percent of New Zealand is forest. Some of the forests have remained unchanged for millions of years. They're old, beautiful, and mysterious! They have made New Zealand a perfect choice for film directors. Did you know that the forests, lakes, and mountains were the settings for several important Hollywood movies like: The Hobbit, The Lord of the Rings, and The Chronicles of Narnia?

3. The beaches.-New Zealand has more than 6,000 kilometers of coastline. The beaches are long and sandy, and the conditions are perfect for water sports. Kayaking, diving, surfing, and sailing are all popular sports with locals and visitors. You can't visit New Zealand without visiting at least one of its fantastic beaches!

4. The whales and dolphins.-Half of the world's whale and dolphin population lives in the seas around New Zealand. Kaikoura, on the South Island, is one of the best whale-watching spots in the world. If you've never seen a whale up close, this is your chance, and you shouldn't miss it.

5. The culture.-Humans have only lived on the islands for about 1,000 years. The first people to arrive were islanders from Eastern Polynesia, called Maori. Today, about 15 percent of the population of New Zealand is Maori. Their culture and their customs developed into the Maori way of life.
