VOCABULARY

1 Circle the correct words.

People <sup>1</sup>greet / <sup>gesture</sup> each other in many ways when they meet. All around the world, it's very common to <sup>2</sup>whisper / <sup>wave</sup> when you want to attract someone's attention, and then simply <sup>3</sup>smile / <sup>shout</sup> to show that you are happy. If we don't do this, then the other person might <sup>4</sup>interpret / <sup>translate</sup> your serious face as meaning that you don't want to meet them. Perhaps the most common way to say hello in Europe and North America is to <sup>5</sup>wave / <sup>shake</sup> hands. In other places, like Japan, people bow (move their head and body forwards). In the Philippines, some people perform a <sup>6</sup>gesture / <sup>shake</sup> called mano (this Spanish word <sup>7</sup>posts / <sup>translates</sup> as 'hand' into English), putting the other person's hand on their head. In some cultures, people put their noses together when they meet. In Costa Rica, however, people <sup>8</sup>shout / <sup>whisper</sup> 'Ooooooooooppe!' in a very loud voice when they meet!
