

The Legend of Princess Junjung Buih

A long time ago, in the Kingdom of Negara Dipa, there was a king named Raja Bagus Hadikusuma. He and his wife did not have any children. Did they try to have children for many years? Yes, they prayed to the gods every day. One day, the king sat by the river and saw something strange. Was it an ordinary sight? No, it was not. A beautiful girl floated on the water, surrounded by bubbles. The king brought her to the palace and named her Princess Junjung Buih.

The princess grew up and became very beautiful. Did she have any special abilities? Yes, she could talk to animals and plants. Many princes wanted to marry her, but did she accept any of them? No, she did not. She said, "I will marry the man who can build a palace in one night." Did the people believe it was possible? No, they thought it was impossible. They did not try to build the palace.

One day, a brave prince named Lambung Mangkurat visited the kingdom. Did he fear the challenge? No, he did not. He loved challenges and wanted to marry the princess. He asked, "Can I try to build the palace?" The princess smiled and agreed. That night, did Lambung Mangkurat sleep? No, he did not. Lambung Mangkurat worked hard. He asked the spirits for help, and by morning, the palace was ready. Was the princess pleased with his effort? Yes, she was.

Princess Junjung Buih was happy. Did she marry Lambung Mangkurat? Yes, she did. She married Lambung Mangkurat and they ruled the kingdom together. Did the people live in peace and prosperity? Yes, they did. The king and queen always cared for their people. Did they ever face problems again? No, because they ruled wisely and kindly.
