FLUFFY SIDNEY

Sidney was a fluffy rabbit who lived at the edge of a big meadow. Sidney loved to hop around the meadow, playing with his friends and exploring.

One day, Sidney heard a tiny squeak coming from behind a bush. He hopped over and found a baby bird that had fallen out of its nest. The little bird chirped. Sidney's heart swelled with kindness. "Don't worry, little one. I'll help you," he said.

Sidney looked around and saw the nest high up in a tall tree. He scratched his head. "How will I reach it?". Just then, his friend, Lucy the squirrel, scurried by. "Sidney, what's wrong?" she asked. Sidney pointed to the baby bird. "We need to get him back to his nest," Sidney explained. Lucy's eyes lit up. "I can help! I'm great at climbing trees," she said. Lucy climbed up the tree with the baby bird in her paws and carefully placed it back in the nest. The baby bird chirped happily and flapped its wings.
