

mean old pity pity old mean hungry pity old smiled

One day a tramp came to an old woman's house. 'Excuse me,' said the tramp. 'I'm very h_____. Have you got anything to eat?' But the old woman was very m_____. 'Go away,' she said. 'I haven't got any food for you.' said the tramp, 'well, have you got any water? You see, I've got a magic Stone and can make soup with it. But I need some water.' 'A magic stone, eh?' said the m_____ old woman. 'Yes, I've got some water.' She fetched a big saucepan of Water and put it on the cooker. The tramp put the stone into it-After a while he tasted the Soup. 'Mmm. It's very good,' he said. 'Have you got any salt and pepper?' The old woman fetched some salt and pepper. 'Mmm. That's better,' said the tramp. 'It really needs some vegetables. It's a p_____ you haven't got any vegetables.' 'Ohs I can find some vegetables,' said the o_____ woman. She ran into the garden and brought back some potatoes, carrots, beans and a big onion. The tramp put the vegetables into the saucepan. 'Is it ready now?' asked the o_____ woman. 'Almost,' said the tramp. 'It really needs some meat. It's a p_____ you haven't got any meat.' 'Oh, I can find some meat,' said the old woman. She ran to the cellar and came back with some ham and some sausages. The tramp put them into the saucepan. 'Right,' said the tramp after a while. 'I can't see the stone now, so the soup is ready. Bread is very good with stone soup. It's a p_____ you haven't got any bread.' 'Oh, I can find some bread,' said the woman. She went to the cupboard and fetched a loaf of bread. some butter and a bottle of wine. She put them on the table with some knives, forks and spoons. 'Mmm, this is delicious,' said the o_____ woman when she tasted the soup. 'And you made it with just that magic stone.' The tramp s_____, picked up his knife and cut another slice of bread.

Activity created from Oxford Text Checker on

<https://www.oxfordlearnersdictionaries.com/>