

Please, read the text. Some lines are correct. Write the word 'correct' at the end of these lines. However, most of the lines contain an extra word. Write them at the end of the lines, too.

If you happen to see a legal-sounding post being shared across _____ Facebook, steer clear. The post is just at the latest hoax that has began _____ spreading on the social network, warning that unless users don't _____ re-post the statement, Facebook will have been access to their personal _____ data and photos without their permission. According to the post, _____ those who do re-post it, will be exempt from Facebook's Data Use _____ Policy. Another hoax which making the rounds is one describing a _____ monthly annual fee that Facebook has supposedly introduced for users to _____ keep their data private. This message promises to users who re-post _____ it will get the service free of charge; those who don't, will see their posts _____ become public. 'While there may be water on Mars, don't believe inn _____ everything what you read on the internet today,' a Facebook post reads. _____
Facebook's terms state 'you own all of the content and some information _____ you post. Moreover, Facebook is free and thus is always will be. _____