Making Dinner for Friends

Yesterday, I made dinner for my friends. First, I decided to (1)_____ some potatoes in hot water until they were soft. While the water was getting hot, I needed to (2)_____ the potatoes - I used a special tool to remove the brown skin. After they were soft enough, I used a fork to (3)_____ them with butter and milk until they became smooth and creamy.

For the main dish, I needed to (4)_____ some onions and garlic with a sharp knife into very small pieces. Then I decided to (5)_____ some chicken on the barbecue - the flames made nice marks on the meat. While the chicken was cooking, I had to (6)_____ some cheese using this special tool with small holes - it made the cheese look like yellow snow!

My friends love vegetables, so I decided to (7)_____ some carrots in a pan with olive oil to make them golden brown. I had to use a wooden spoon to (8)_____ them every few minutes so they wouldn't stick to the bottom of the pan.

For dessert, I wanted to (9)_____ a cake in the oven. First, I had to (10)_____ the flour through a special metal net to remove any lumps. Then I needed to (11)_____ the eggs and cream together really fast with a special tool until they became light and fluffy. I had to (12)_____ all the ingredients together in a big bowl. After that, I had to carefully (13)_____ the milk from the bottle into the mixture.

While the cake was in the oven, I decided to (14)_____ some bread until it was golden brown and crispy and (15)_____ it with butter. When everything was finally ready, I started to (16)_____ the food on nice plates for my friends.

The dinner was perfect - except I forgot to (17)_____ up the soup before serving it, so it was a bit cold. But my friends didn't mind, and they even asked me to (18)_____ the rest of the cake for them to take home - they wanted me to put it in small containers for them!
