UNIT 5 WORLD FOOD LESSON 4 – STORY 2

Cooking for the King

- 1 Ibrahim's father was a famous chef, and he had won many cooking competitions. Sometimes he even cooked for the king! He taught Ibrahim recipes, and now Ibrahim was cooking in a competition. "I hope I cook well," said Ibrahim. "Don't worry," said his father. "You're a good student. I know you will do well."

- 2 Ibrahim was nervous, but he smiled when he saw his friend Baraz. He was cooking in the competition, too. "What are you cooking, Ibrahim?" asked Baraz. "I'm making judhaba," he said. "It's made with bread, bananas, and sugar. It's cooked in an oven with some chicken."

- 3 The competition started, and everything was going well. But then Ibrahim made a mistake. "Oh, no! I've used too much spice!" "Don't worry, Ibrahim," said Baraz. An hour later, Ibrahim took the food out of the oven. "Oh, no, my chicken is burned!" said Ibrahim.

- 4 Ibrahim was very disappointed. "It's OK, Ibrahim," said Baraz. "It was your first competition. And winning isn't important. It's important that you tried hard." "Thank you, Baraz," said Ibrahim. "I can practice more, and one day, I will be a great chef, too." "I think you will," smiled Baraz.
