

 CD2.17 Richard talks about ‘the regulatory environment’. This is where the authorities have official powers to control the production and safety of drugs. Listen to the second part and complete this audio-script extract.

I think the biggest .....<sup>1</sup> for us is the regulatory environment. The laws that we need to follow are quite .....<sup>2</sup> – and quite rightly so. We in the pharmaceutical industry have the same interests as the doctor. We want to help .....<sup>3</sup> lead better lives.

We have to present the data in a .....<sup>4</sup> and balanced way, not to overstate the advantages of our .....<sup>5</sup>. Because we're trying to develop .....<sup>6</sup> which are consistent across many different countries across Europe ... it's often a challenge.
