PRESENT HABITS

Always

PRESENT CONTINUOUS	PRESENT SIMPLE
We can use always with the Present Continuous to mean 'very often', usually with the added meaning of 'too often'.	Always with the Present Simple means 'every time'.
Tom is always inviting friends here. (= He invites them very often.)	Tom always invites us to stay at Christmas. (= He invites us every Christmas.)
I'm always making silly mistakes. (= I make silly mistakes too often.)	I always make silly mistakes in exams. (= I make mistakes in every exam.)

Ex.1. Write sentences in Present Continuous to describe annoying habits.

1.James / always/listen to music very loud. — .....

2.They / constantly/lie to their teacher. — .....

3.Andrew / always/joke at me. — .....

4.Children /constantly/ hide my wallet. — .....

5.You /constantly/ drink from my cup. — .....

6.Sofia / always/criticize her husband. — .....

7.You / forever/yell at me. — .....

8.Michael / constantly/borrow money from his friends. — .....

9.Our children / always/play computer games. — .....

10.My cat / always/scratch the furniture. — .....

Ex.2. Complete the sentences. Use always and the Present Continuous or Present Simple.

1.Melanie: Tom talks too much, doesn't he?

Rita: Yes, and he is always talking about football.

2.Laura: You forget your keys every time.

Trevor: I try to remember them, but I always forget.

3.Claire: Sarah takes the train every day, doesn't she?

Mark:Yes, ...the train.

4.Vicky: Rachel misses lectures much too often in my opinion.

Emma: I agree . .....lectures.

5.Mike: Every time I drive along here, I go the wrong way.

Harriet:But it's very simple, isn't it?

Why .....the wrong way?

6.David: Trevor and Laura argue much too often, I think.

Melanie: I know. .....

"Well, which sound would you prefer I annoy you with...sipping the soup or crunching the crackers?"

LIVEWORKSHEETS