Thomas Edison and Nikola Tesla were two very important inventors. Edison was a prolific inventor. He invented the phonograph, the ancestor of the record player, and he improved¹ the light bulb and the telephone.

Tesla used his knowledge² of science to find new solutions. He gave us the radio and neon lighting. He did not create as many things as Edison. As a result, he did not make as much money as Edison and did not enjoy as much popularity as him; he died in debt.

1 improve = améliorer 2 knowledge = connaissance, savoir patent (v.) : breveter, protéger par un brevet
