Listen and draw lines. There is one example.

Emma Frank Helen George

The illustration shows a winter scene with several children and a dog. At the top, a child in a green jacket and red pants is skiing down a slope. To the right, a child in a blue jacket and yellow helmet is also skiing. Further right, a child in a green jacket and pink helmet is sitting on a sled. In the middle left, a child in a light blue jacket and yellow hat is building a snowman. Next to them, a child in a yellow jacket and blue hat is sitting on a sled. To the right of that, a child in a light blue jacket and blue hat is walking. Further right, there is a green bench. In the bottom left, a child in a yellow jacket and blue pants is rolling a snowball. Next to them, a child in a green jacket and red hat is standing. To the right of that, a child in a red jacket and blue skirt is ice skating. Further right, a child in a pink jacket and grey pants is ice skating. In the bottom center, a child in a yellow and orange striped shirt and purple pants is lying on the snow, holding a ski. To the right of that, a child in a pink jacket and grey pants is ice skating. A dog is playing with a snowball in the bottom center. Lines connect the names at the top to specific people in the scene: Frank to the skier in the green jacket, Helen to the skier in the blue jacket, George to the child building the snowman, and Sophia to the child in the yellow jacket on the sled. There is also a line from the name 'Katy' at the bottom to the child in the pink jacket on the right.
