In Dubai in the United Arab Emirates, fighting fires has become more difficult in recent years. There are two reasons for this. One reason is the height of the buildings in the city, which makes it hard for firefighters to reach the top. Another reason is that Dubai's roads are very busy, with lots of traffic jams. Emergency fire services often find it impossible to drive traditional fire engines quickly to the site of a fire. To improve their fire services, Dubai has developed a new method of fighting fires. Instead of using the roads to get to a fire, firefighters now use the many waterways in the city. They travel along the water on jet skis to get to the fire. Then they use jetpacks on their backs to rise up into the air. The jetpack takes water from the waterway below and sends it up through the fire hose. In this way, firefighters can fight the fire from above
