

1. Listen the text and fill in the gapes.

Modern Art and Its Impact on Society

Modern art is an important part of our culture. If people art galleries more often, they different perspectives and emotions better. Art influences our emotions and thoughts. Maybe you've about dopamine colours. They can make us feel happy, if we see colorful and bright paintings. On the other hand, if an artwork is full of dark and chaotic details, it might us feel confused or sad. But If people paintings carefully, they not only it colours, but hidden meanings.

Also as technology has changed, so the way art has changed too. Many artists experiment with new techniques and ideas. If an artist uses digital tools, they can more detailed and complex images. Many young artists use social media to share their work. Not only they can , if they try something unique, but if they post regularly, they more followers and recognition.

Times are changing, too. Once, street art used to be perceived as vandalism, but now it an important part of modern culture. A lot of cities support street artists and that's the reason why their streets become more and more vibrant and creative. However, if graffiti is illegal, artists might find it difficult to express themselves. In some cases, if a street artist permission to paint a mural, they can turn an old wall into a masterpiece.

Museums play a key role in modern art. If museums organize interactive exhibitions, more people will be interested in visiting. Sometimes, it may cause public debates, if a museum displays . However, if people discuss art openly, they will learn to appreciate different viewpoints as art also connects with social issues. If an artist on climate change, their work can raise awareness about environmental problems, poverty or discrimination. If art speaks about these problems people more deeply about these issues.

Modern art is everywhere. If we pay more attention to it, we new ideas, emotions and ways of speaking with the world. So let's not forget that art is not only beautiful pictures, but heart and soul of .

Answer the questions

1. How would the world change if art disappeared?
2. What would happen, if artists stopped expressing their thoughts through art?
3. If you had the opportunity to create an art exhibition, what would it be like?
4. If contemporary art didn't exist, what would our cities look like?
5. How would society's attitude towards art change if schools added more art classes?
6. If street art was legal everywhere, would it become more popular?
7. How would society change if art actively spoke out about social issues?
8. Is street art vandalism or art?

If you were a collector what would you choose and why?

