Art Day

1 It's Art Day at the club!

I need some paint.

Can I have a brush, please?

I want to draw, but I haven't got any ideas!

2 Don't worry. Anna is coming. She's an artist and a teacher. She can help!

3 Anna's late. She's never late! She always gets up at six o'clock.

That's very early! I get up at seven o'clock.

4 Meanwhile, on the road ...

I need to get to the club for Art Day, and I'm late. Oh!

Oh no! What a mess!

The comic strip consists of four panels. Panel 1 shows a group of children in an art room. A girl asks for paint and a brush, while a boy expresses frustration about not having ideas. Panel 2 shows a girl reassuring them that Anna, an artist and teacher, is coming to help. Panel 3 shows the children talking about Anna's early wake-up time. Panel 4 is split: the left side shows a girl on a bicycle with a basket of art supplies, looking worried about being late; the right side shows Anna lying on the ground next to her bicycle, which has tipped over, with art supplies scattered around.

Lesson 3

5 Back at the club ...

I'm bored.

I don't know what to draw.

Come on, let's go for a walk.

6 Look, there's Anna!

Are you OK?

7 I'm fine, don't worry - but look at my bike! I've got an idea.

8 It looks great. Well done, everyone!

This is the best Art Day ever!

The comic strip continues with four panels. Panel 5 shows the children at the art club, bored and struggling to find something to draw. A girl suggests going for a walk. Panel 6 shows them outside, where they find Anna sitting up and looking at her bicycle. They ask if she's OK. Panel 7 shows Anna showing the children her bicycle, which has been decorated with colorful patterns. She says she's fine and has an idea. Panel 8 shows the children painting and decorating their own bicycles, inspired by Anna's. They all praise her work and declare it the best Art Day ever.
