Two popular inventions from the 1920s

The 1920s was an exciting time for inventions. Some of the things invented around that time had an important influence on the lives of millions of people, and some of those inventions are still widely used today. The invention with the biggest impact was probably the television. It was invented by a Scottish man, John Logie Baird. The first televised pictures were sent over a short distance in 1924, and his invention was formally demonstrated at the Royal Institute two years later. The quality of the pictures on the screen was poor, but the viewers could see that they were human faces, and they could see their eyes opening and closing. Another invention that became popular in the 1920s was the home refrigerator. People used different ways to keep food cool and fresh long before the 1900s, but home fridges weren't invented until 1913 in the USA. Home fridges became very popular in the USA in the 1920s. British people were less interested in fridges than Americans. They thought that they were unnecessary because the weather in Britain was cooler. But fridges were heavily advertised, and their advantages were described in detail. Soon, more fridges were sold, and the price decreased.
