UNIT 6

VIETNAM AND INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Vietnam actively participates in many international organizations to strengthen global cooperation. The country is a member of the United Nations (UN), the World Trade Organization (WTO), and the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). By joining these organizations, Vietnam has shown its commitment to global development and poverty reduction.

One of Vietnam's key roles is in ASEAN, where it helps promote peace and economic growth in the region. Vietnam is also responsible for working with other countries to solve important issues such as climate change and trade. In 2007, Vietnam officially entered the WTO, which has helped create more opportunities for businesses and workers.

Vietnam has also committed to international agreements on education, health, and environmental protection. These efforts are essential for the country's progress. As a member of the UN, Vietnam works to ensure respect for human rights and international laws. The country is always ready to welcome new partnerships and share knowledge with other nations.

Through its active participation in international organizations, Vietnam continues to grow and build strong relationships with the world. These efforts not only benefit Vietnam but also contribute to global peace and prosperity.
