Reading

Schools in Bangladesh

In Bangladesh, some children go to boat school. They wake up early, walk down to the river and get on a boat for their classes! There are many boat schools in the country, and thousands of children use them.

Bangladesh has got boat schools because there is a lot of water in the country and when there is flooding the schools in the villages close. Boat schools travel from small village to small village. Classes start when all the students are on the boat.

On boat schools, there are tables and chairs and a bookcase with school books. There is electricity, but there is only one computer for the students. They can use the computer to go online. Children study in the morning and then go home at lunchtime to help their families.

Boat schools are fun and important for the future of Bangladesh.
