Sally and John Plan a Surprise Party

Sally and John were busy planning a surprise party for their brother. They started by unpacking a of groceries they had bought earlier. John placed a of wine and a of apple juice on the kitchen counter, while Sally set out a of crisps in a for the guests.

"We'll need decorations," Sally said, grabbing a of glue to make a banner. Meanwhile, John checked the fridge. "We still have a of eggs and some of yoghurt," he said.

For the snacks, they prepared a of sandwiches and added two of sugar to the punch. "Don't forget a of salt for the salad," Sally reminded him.

As a treat, Sally brought out a of chocolate to melt for a fondue. They also had a of whipped cream and a of pineapple slices ready. John poured juice into a, while Sally sipped from a of cocoa.

They used a of milk to make the cake batter, and set out five of cake on a tray. On the side table, they arranged some of bread, a of grapes, and even a of ice cream for fun.

Just before the guests arrived, John ran outside to fill a of water for the flowers.

Everything was ready. Now, all they had to do was wait for their brother to walk in and be surprised!
