

Paraphrase the sentences by using to seem, to appear with 4 types of the infinitive (to do, to be doing, to have done, to have been doing).

1. It seems that she likes spicy food.
She _____ spicy food.
2. It seems that the students are discussing an interesting topic.
The students _____ an interesting topic.
3. It appears that the construction workers are taking a break.
The construction workers _____ a break.
4. It appears that the police have solved the case.
The police _____ the case.
5. It seems that he is enjoying the concert.
He _____ the concert.
6. It seems that she is watching a movie right now.
She _____ a movie right now.
7. It seems that she has found a new job.
She _____ a new job.
8. It seems that the chef is preparing a new dish.
The chef _____ a new dish.
9. It appears that the waiter has forgotten our order.
The waiter _____ our order.
10. It appears that he is talking to someone on the phone.
He _____ to someone on the phone.
11. It appears that the team has won the championship.
The team _____ the championship.
12. It seems that the teacher explains concepts very clearly.
The teacher _____ concepts very clearly.
13. It seems that they have been planning this trip for months.
They _____ this trip for months.
14. It appears that they know a lot about wine.
They _____ a lot about wine.
15. It appears that the journalist has been investigating the scandal for weeks.
The journalist _____ the scandal for weeks.

16. It seems that this road leads to the main square.
This road _____ to the main square.
17. It seems that the workers have been repairing the road for several hours.
The workers _____ the road for several hours.
18. It appears that he has been writing a novel in secret.
He _____ a novel in secret.
19. It seems that the chef has been testing a new recipe.
The chef _____ a new recipe.
20. It appears that the new employee understands the system well.
The new employee _____ the system well.
21. It appears that the scientist has been conducting research on this for years.
The scientist _____ research on this for years.
22. It appears that they have sold their house recently.
They _____ their house recently.