Some people say cleaning is boring, but I find it oddly _____. There's something satisfying about seeing a messy room become neat and tidy. Although I didn't _____ loving chores, over time, it became _____ to grab a broom or do the laundry without thinking.

However, if I ignore things for even one day, dishes and clothes _____ quickly. That's why I set a _____ schedule: 30 minutes a day to tackle the essentials. I try to _____ by playing music or listening to a podcast while I work.

I know my house _____ looks clean, but believe me, there's a lot going on _____ the surface. Dust hides under furniture, and clutter gathers in drawers.

Sometimes, I clean _____—for my siblings or my parents—especially when they're busy. I also notice how chores can hurt the _____ of some people who think they're "too important" to do the dishes. Ironically, those same people often _____ doing the hardest jobs when they finally decide to help.
