Read part of an email from Justin to a friend, Wayne and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct word or phrase that best fits each of the numbered blanks.

Hi Wayne,

How are you? I'm fine, apart from having too much school work! We're looking at cities of the future at the moment, and I have to give a presentation tomorrow with ideas about how cities can deal with their present problems. I read a (32)_____ the other day that 70% of people will live in a city by 2050, so we've got to make them pleasant places to live. We can't all go back to living on farms in the countryside.

I've got a few ideas. For example, cities will have to stop using (33)_____ fuels completely and switch to solar power, wind power, or some other eco-friendly form of energy. Secondly, I think they will have to use drones to (34)_____ things, because trucks should not be allowed in city centers.

Thirdly, in my city and many others, there is a big problem with congestion, so city councils will (35)_____ have to do something about private cars, maybe even ban them completely from the center. I think it's likely that private vehicles like cars will be self-driving, don't you? I don't really know what else to write about. Have you got any ideas? For example, will we have flying taxis? Where will everybody live? Will robots be everywhere?

Write me with your thoughts ... but you have to (36)_____ something tonight or it will be too late!

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

In the future, cities will need to make sustainable development the most important thing. In other words, cities must grow in a good way and not damage the environment. People who manage cities in the future will have to consider a large number of things, including transportation, energy use, green spaces, and housing. All of these will need to be improved to make future cities pleasant places to live.

Smart systems will run successful future cities, including self-driving vehicles powered by eco-friendly fuels, such as electricity produced by solar panels or wind power. Transportation by car within the city will actually be faster than now, because there will be less congestion. A lot more people will commute to and from work on subway systems and in buses with their own lanes. Most trucks will disappear from city streets because delivery of goods will be by drone.

Successful future cities will have a lot more green spaces than today, which will improve air quality and reduce, to some extent, the worst effects of climate change. Research has shown that green spaces improve mental health as well as physical health, so the people who live in these cities will generally be happier than today. Although it will be expensive, new parks must be built. In addition, green spaces will also be put on top of buildings, private and public, and trees will be planted alongside all streets.

Future cities must provide enough affordable housing inside the cities themselves, not on the outskirts. This should be achieved by building higher and higher, or deep into the ground, or by converting old factories. It should not be achieved by allowing future cities to spread in all directions, converting farmland and open spaces into housing.

39: What would be a good heading for the third paragraph?

- A. The benefits of green spaces
- B. How gardens reduce pollution
- C. Green spaces and climate change
- D. The cost of going green

40: Which of the following does the writer NOT recommend for affordable housing?
