Reading passage 2

ANIMATION

The theory of the animated cartoon was introduced before the invention of the cinema by half a century. When working to create conversation pieces for Victorian shops, people discovered the principle of persistence of vision. If drawings of the stages of an action were shown in fast succession, the human eye would perceive them as a continuous movement.

One of the first commercially successful devices, invented by the Belgian Joseph Plateau in 1832, was the phenakistoscope, a spinning cardboard disk that created the illusion of movement when viewed in a mirror, in 1834, William Horner invented the zoetrope, a rotating drum lined by a band of pictures. The Frenchman Émile Reynaud in 1876 adapted the principle into a form that could be projected before a theatrical audience. Reynaud became not only animation's first entrepreneur but also the first artist to give personality and warmth to his animated characters.

FOOD FESTIVAL

Sarah works for a local charity organization that gives poor children an opportunity to taste “foreign” food. This year “Wish you were here” has organized a food festival to raise enough money to send to children in Cornwall. They are hoping to attract a lot of visitors and they have already decided that the food festival is popular, so it will take place every year.

There are many things to do and see at the festival. You can buy food from many restaurants and you don’t need to break the bank because meals are expensive. Children are welcome and their meals only cost nothing. Other events at the festival include face-painting and a competition which is open to participants from all age groups. Families will be especially pleased to see in an area when their children can have a meal.
