Mom: You seem really stressed lately. What's going on at school?

Student: It's these kids in my class. They constantly make about me, my clothes during lunch and say mean things under their breath.

Mom: You mean they you?

Student: Yeah, and yesterday one of them tried to my sandwich when I wasn't looking. They also try to me by crowding around my desk before class.

Mom: That's stealing! Did you report it?

Student: I did, but the teacher assumed I was lying because I argued with them last week.

Mom: That's an unfair I'm sorry you're going through this.

Student: It's just... I feel so They even and say I'm "soft."

Mom: That's awful. You need to learn to Don't let them treat you like that.

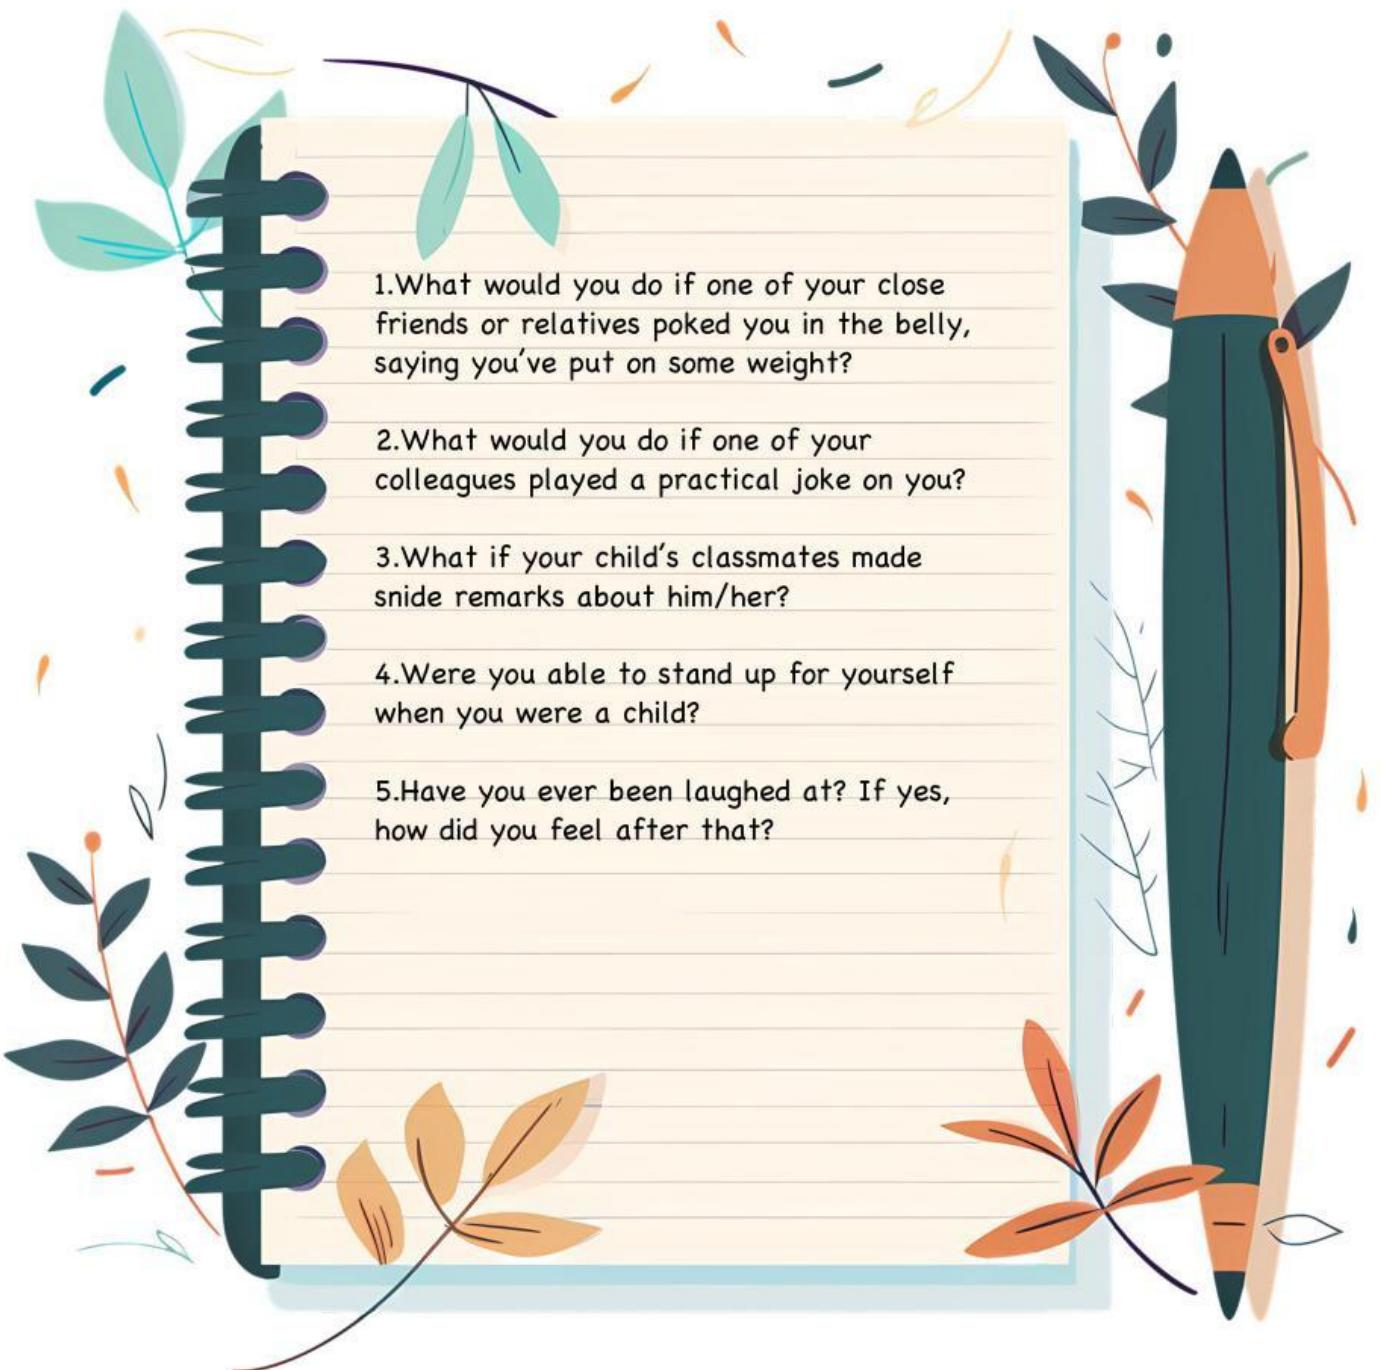

Student: It's hard. We just from the beginning. They think I'm weird because I don't like to the others do.

Mom: Like what?

Student: Like when they on other students or which teacher's the worst.

Mom: That's not okay. Let's talk to your school counselor tomorrow. You shouldn't go through this alone.
