

Today, we'll talk about how people take care of animals. There are different kinds of animals, and some of them live on a farm while others live in a zoo.

We keep animals on a farm to help us with work or for food, like cows that give milk or hens that lay eggs. Other animals like tigers are too wild to live on a farm, so we keep them in a zoo where we can learn about them.

We'll sort animals into two groups: farm animals and zoo animals, so we can learn more about them!
