When people grow up, they have to choose a job. Some people want a job that pays a lot of money. Others want a job they enjoy, even if the salary is not very high.

There are many different kinds of jobs. Doctors help sick people and save lives. Teachers work in schools and help students learn new things. Engineers design machines and buildings. Farmers grow food for everyone.

Choosing a job is not easy. You need to think about your interests and your skills. For example, if you like helping people, you might become a nurse or a doctor. If you are good at drawing and design, you could become an architect.
