

DEFINING AND NON-DEFINING RELATIVE CLAUSES

1.- Combine into one sentence using an appropriate relative pronoun (who, which, that, where, whose, etc.):

1. I have a friend. He speaks three languages.

2. This is the book. You gave it to me yesterday.

3. She met a boy. His father is a famous actor.

4. That's the school. I studied there for five years.

5. We watched a film last night. It was really funny.

6. There's a museum in town. It has a dinosaur skeleton.

7. The girl is my cousin. She won the race.

8. He showed me a photo. His brother is in the photo.

9. That's the restaurant. We had dinner there last weekend.

10. I know a shop. It sells delicious cakes.

2.- Join the sentences using an appropriate relative pronoun (who, which, whose, where) and add commas correctly:

1. My brother is a doctor. He works in a hospital in Madrid.

2. London is a big city. It has many famous landmarks.

3. Mr. Brown is our English teacher. He loves literature.

4. My car broke down. It is ten years old.

5. Julia is my best friend. Her parents are from Argentina.

6. We visited the Prado Museum. It is located in Madrid.

7. Tom lives in that house. It has a red door.

8. My uncle lives in Paris. He is a famous chef.

9. We stayed at a hotel. It was very expensive.

10. Sara gave me a book. The book was really interesting.

3.-In which of these sentences can we omit the relative pronoun?

1. The book that I borrowed from the library is amazing.
2. This is the place where we usually meet.
3. The boy who we met at the party is very funny.
4. The man who fixed my bike is very kind.
5. That's the film which I told you about.
6. This is the cake that she made yesterday.
7. She's the student who got the best grade in the exam.
8. That's the girl whose brother is in my class.
9. The shoes which he bought were really expensive.
10. I have a friend who speaks five languages.