Task 1. Read the passage and answer the questions.

Communities Then and Now

Long ago, communities looked very different from how they look today. People lived in small groups and had to hunt for food. They built homes from things they found in nature, like sticks and mud. But as time passed, communities changed a lot! Now, we live in big cities, small towns, and even suburbs. We have houses with roofs and walls made from strong things like bricks, steel and wood. We have cars and buses to help us travel from place to place. We also have stores where we can buy food, clothes, and toys. Our communities have schools where children like you go to learn new things. We have parks where we can play and have fun with our friends. We also have libraries where we can read books and learn about the world around us. Even though communities have changed a lot, one thing remains the same: people still work together to make our communities happy and safe places to live.
