Task 2: Read the text about papyrus. Then write YES or NO.

Papyrus

A long time ago, the ancient Egyptians needed something to write on. They didn't have paper like we do today. Instead, they used a plant called papyrus. This plant grew along the Nile River. The Egyptians cut the plant into thin strips and placed them together. Then, they pressed the strips until they became flat and dry. After that, they could write on it with a pen made from a reed and ink.

Papyrus was very useful. People used it to write letters, draw pictures, and make books. It was also used in other countries around the Mediterranean Sea. Today, we still have some old papyrus scrolls in museums. They show us how people lived and what they believed many years ago.

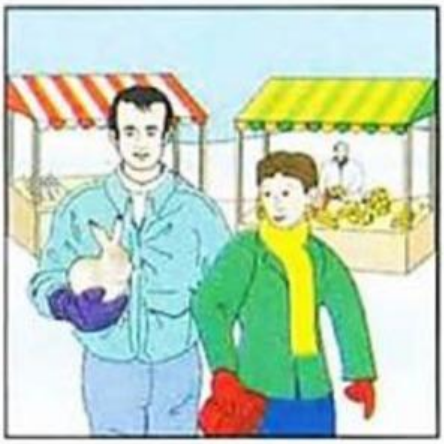

1. The ancient Egyptians used papyrus because they didn't have modern paper.
2. Papyrus grew near the Amazon River.
3. The Egyptians wrote on papyrus with pencils.
4. People used papyrus to write letters and draw pictures.
5. Today, we cannot see any papyrus scrolls.
