Working around the clock

Jayden Smith, a businessman, lives with his wife Katy in Texas, USA. He tells us about their typical day.

From Monday to Friday, I get up at six. I have a big cup of coffee and check my emails and messages. I don't have breakfast, but I make breakfast for Katy - usually toast and eggs. I leave home at 7.30 and go to work. I work in a big office in the city centre. At one, I have lunch. I usually have a sandwich at my desk and go on social media or listen to a podcast. I finish work at five and go home. I have dinner with Katy - often pasta or rice. In the evening, I watch TV or read a book. I go to bed at 10.30 or 11.

Katy's day is very different. She's a taxi driver and usually works at night. She starts work at 7 p.m. and finishes at 4 or 5 a.m. She gets home at six and has breakfast, then she goes to bed. She gets up at three and goes to the gym. Then she goes home and makes dinner. We have dinner together before she leaves for work. She works on Saturdays, but she never works on Sundays. On Sunday mornings we go for a walk, then make lunch together and watch a film.
