The event was canceled (on the one hand / because of / therefore) heavy rain and strong winds that made it unsafe for everyone involved. (Consequently / Due to / Because of) the fact that the organizers had prepared for bad weather in advance, they had backup plans ready, but the severity of the storm exceeded their expectations. (Due to / On the one hand /Therefore), many attendees were disappointed because they had been looking forward to the event for weeks. (As a result / On the one hand / Because of) the poor weather conditions, the venue remained closed for the entire day, preventing any activities from taking place. (Because of/ As a result /On the one hand), the organizers decided to reschedule the event for next month to ensure everyone's safety and enjoyment. (Due to /Consequently/ On the one hand), some people were happy about the delay because it gave them more time to prepare and rearrange their schedules, (therefore / on the other hand / because of), others were frustrated because they had already made travel plans and had to change them at the last minute.
