Letter Of The Week

Hi Paul,

I had a bad day at school yesterday. Let me tell you about it.

My friends and I were in the classroom. It was twenty past nine and we were waiting for our teacher. She was late. I was alone at my desk because my best friend Oliver was playing truant that day. I was reading some text messages on my mobile phone. Two boys from my class, Dan and Marcus, were fighting. Maria was copying Isabel's homework because she never does her own homework. One boy, Carl, was even spraying graffiti on a wall.

Suddenly, Miss Harris came into the classroom. She was very angry. She stopped in front of my desk, looked at me and said: 'Why are you using your mobile phone in class? You're breaking the school rules!'

'But Miss Harris, I wasn't using my mobile phone. I was only reading some text messages,' I said. 'Why are you angry with me?' Miss Harris thought I was lying to her. 'Don't be rude, Rob! You are using your mobile phone!' she said, and she sent me to the head teacher's office.

The head teacher punished me, but he didn't punish anyone else. What can I do?

Rob
