Read the following fact file on some first aid tips for injury treatment. Decide whether the statements from 23 to 26 are True or False, and choose the correct answers to complete the statements in the questions 27 and 28. (1.5 pts)

First aid is crucial for effectively managing injuries and protecting the injured person from more severe harm. If someone is burned, it's important to cool the burn immediately by running cold water over the area for at least 10 minutes. For broken bones, immobilise the injured area with a splint to prevent further damage and seek medical attention as soon as possible. If the injury involves a bruised or sprained limb, applying ice can help reduce swelling and pain. When treating a cut, clean the wound gently with water, and apply pressure to stop bleeding. If the cut is deep, use a sterile bandage and seek medical care. Doing extreme sports can sometimes result in risky injuries, so wearing proper protective gear and warming up before physical activity is crucial to prevent fractures and sprains. For any injury that causes severe pain, deformity, or difficulty moving, it's important to go to the hospital immediately. In some cases, immobilising the area with a clean cloth or bandage can help ward off further complications. In all situations, staying calm, acting quickly, and seeking professional medical attention can help ensure the best recovery and avoid long-term damage to bones, muscles, or skin.

23. It's necessary for you to use first aid to reduce injury severity.
24. If someone is burned, avoid cooling the area and instead cover it with hot water for at least 10 minutes.

26. If movement is difficult due to severe injury, just rest at home instead of going to the hospital.
27. In all injury cases, you can ensure better recovery and prevent lasting harm by _____.
