

COMPARISON

The charts below show the main reasons why students chose a particular university in the UK in 1997 and 2007.

Main reasons why students chose a particular university in the UK, 1997 - 2007

Điền vào chỗ trống, sử dụng từ trong ngoặc (có thể thêm từ hoặc thay đổi dạng của từ).

- In 1997, suitable degree courses were a much (influential) factor than proximity to home, with 35% and 10% of students citing these reasons respectively.
- By 2007, proximity to home had become a noticeably (common) reason for choosing a university in (compare) with the quality of resources, with figures of 22% and 17% in turn.
- In both years, having suitable degree courses was far (important) than the others, with figures of 35% in 1997 and 37% in 2007.
- In 1997, suitable degree courses were by far (important) factor in (compare) with the others, cited by 35% of students.
- By 2007, good sports and social activities had become (influential) factor as (oppose) to the others, at only 6%.
- In 1997, the importance of good sports and social activities (19%) was almost twice (high) proximity to home (10%).
- In 2007, proximity to home (22%) was nearly four times (influential) good sports and social activities (6%).

- In 2007, the quality of teaching was almost (important) as the quality of resources, with figures of 18% and 17% respectively.
- In 1997, the quality of resources (21%) was nearly (influential) as the combined importance of teaching quality and proximity to home (15% and 10% respectively).
- In 2007, (few) students were concerned with the quality of resources than in 1997.
- (many) students prioritized proximity to their parental home in 2007 than in the earlier year.
- A (high) percentage of students chose a university based on its proximity to home in 2007 (22%) (compare) to 1997 (10%).
- The proportion of students who considered good sports and social activities was much (low) in 2007, at only 6%.
- In 2007, a (large) number of students were influenced by the quality of teaching than in 1997.