

Commas: but vs and

Commas are placed before “but” and “and” only if there are two complete sentences on either side. Commas can combine two sentences into one sentence. Draw a comma and add “but” or “and”.

I like pickles, but I don't like cucumbers.

I like burgers I don't like cheeseburgers.

I like animals, and it's so nice to hike.

I like cats I really like that they're soft.

I enjoy walking I am just not a runner.

She was looking hard she couldn't find it.

He seems nice he doesn't enjoy kayaking.

I love lettuce I love spinach as well.

Jack climbed up it was dry at the top.

I fell off my bike I will be okay.