A trip to the Grand Canyon

Last year, about 6.5 million people from all over the world visited the United States. Most visitors entered through major cities like New York, Boston, Miami, Los Angeles, or San Francisco. After landing, many stayed in the city, unaware of the travel opportunities in the country's interior, which offers exceptional beauty and interest. Did you know there are 41 national parks between Maine and California?

Some parks cover thousands of acres, each with unique scenery and character. If you enjoy nature, hiking, or clean air, you'll love the National Parks! Acadia National Park faces the Atlantic Ocean. Yosemite offers mountains, forests, and rivers. Death Valley shows desert life. And of course, there's the Grand Canyon in Arizona, a deep chasm carved by the Colorado River.

Visitors to the Grand Canyon can hike, ride mules, or even take helicopter tours to see the stunning landscape. The weather can be extreme, so you must bring enough water and sun protection. You shouldn't go off the trails because it can be dangerous. Many people say it's a once-in-a-lifetime experience they will never forget.

Weekend Plans

Anna is excited to visit her grandmother this weekend. She's going to take the train early Saturday morning and stay with her for two days. "I haven't seen her for a long time, and I really miss her," Anna says. They plan to cook together, take walks in the countryside, and talk for hours. "We're going to have a peaceful time. I will also bring her a gift," she adds.

Ben, one of Anna's friends, feels unsure about his weekend. "I don't really have plans," he says. "Maybe I'll stay home and watch a movie or play video games." Anna encourages him to go outside and make a plan. "You should invite your friends and have a picnic in the park," she suggests. "You mustn't stay indoors all weekend—it's important to get fresh air and have fun too."

Sara, another friend, has a very busy weekend ahead. She must finish a project and study for two difficult exams. "I'm going to spend most of Saturday studying," she says, "but on Sunday I'll take a break." Sara plans to meet a friend at a local café and relax for a while. "We should enjoy our weekends, even if we're busy," she says. "Taking breaks helps us stay healthy and happy."
